

Seafloor illuminance across lamp set, aim and power

All nine panels share one colour scale, one window and one set of contour levels, so colours and contours are directly comparable.

Rows change the shape of the light; columns change only its level — which is why uniformity and contrast are constant along each row.

